'Parents Rights' Ordinance Is Approved, 4-3

No early vote on 'Sister City' in Israel plan

By Jim Tortolano
Orange County Tribune

In another lengthy and contentious meeting, the Huntington Beach City Council on Tuesday grappled with controversial issues that brought out heated public comments about a proposal to forge a Sister City relationship with a city in Israel, and the final approval of an ordinance declaring Surf City to be a "Parents Right to Know City."

After hours of public comment, the council finally voted 4-3 in favor of final approval of the "parents" ordinance with Mayor Gracey Van Der Mark, Mayor Pro Tem Pat Burns and Councilmembers Tony Strickland and Casey McKeon in favor and Councilmembers Rhonda Bolton, Dan Kalmick and Natalie Moser opposed.

The ordinance will register the city's opposition to State Assembly Bill 1955, which prohibits public school educators from

Investigation into a downtown HB killing

An investigation is underway into a homicide early Sunday morning in the downtown area of Huntington Beach.

According to Jessica Cuchilla, public affairs officer for the HBPD, officers responded to a report at about 2 a.m. of a man suffering from "significant injuries" in the area of Olive Avenue and Main Street.

Police are withholding the nature of the injuries due to the requirements of the investigation.

The Huntington Beach Fire Department responded and provided medical help to the victim who was taken to a local hospital where he succumbed to his injuries.

While the identity of the suspect remains outstanding, police believe the homicide was an isolated incident.

THEY'RE OVER THE MOON(CAKE)

The second Mooncake Festival came to Garden Grove's historic Main Street on Saturday and throngs filled a one-block stretch of that street with many traditional Vietnamese activities including the sharing of "mooncakes" and the painting of lanterns. The event was sponsored by the Vietnamese Soccer Association of Orange County (Orange County Tribune photo).

26 years to life sentence for convicted murderer

A sentence of 26 years to life has been imposed on a man convicted in July of fatally stabbing his girlfriend in a Garden Grove motel in 2021.

According to the Orange County District Attorney's office, Kennedy Anthony Audain, 55, received his sentence on Friday.

He was convicted of first-degree murder with a sentencing enhancement for the personal use of a knife and is ineligible for probation.

Audain was convicted of stabbing Leticia Mahe of

The ordinance declares Huntington Beach a “Parents Right to Know City,” and prohibits educators connected to the city “with the teaching and care of children” from withholding such information from parents.

At our deadline, the council had not yet voted on the proposal to make the Israeli city of Ramat Gan a “Sister City.” We will update this post as soon as possible.

Mahe called 911 and told police that her boyfriend was holding her captive at knifepoint.

Arriving police saw through a window Audain acting strangely and then observed flames in the room.

Officers were able to enter the room with a master key and arrested Audain, whose clothes were stained with blood.

Multiple stab wounds had been inflicted on Mahe and she was pronounced dead at the hotel.

Audain had been on probation from two previous convictions at the time of the stabbing.

Time for 'tough love' for most of homeless

Cities all across our West Orange County and – probably – all across California are busy composing anti-camping ordinances aimed at clearing clusters of homeless people creating impromptu settlements on public land.

In the case of Grants Pass vs.

Johnson, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned a lower court ruling that decided that bans on overnight camping in parks, etc. did not constitute "cruel and unusual punishment" as intended by the U.S. Constitution.

Retorts
Jim Tortolano

Grants' Pass (a lovely small town in Oregon), seeking to clean up the problems posed by the unhoused, created an ordinance with increasing sanctions.

First citations and fines, then bans from parks for 30 days, and then a month in jail for the consistently non-compliant. Tender hearts (and there's nothing wrong with that) have taken the position that many of those in that situation in life are abjectly poor, or addicted to substances or have severe mental and/or emotional problems and therefore are at their last resort in plunking down on the civic turf.

However, when offered services – as with the recently opened Central Cities Navigation Center, operated by the cities of Garden Grove, Fountain Valley and Westminster – the vast majority of those contacted by police and social service workers have refused help.

Why? Because, as you might imagine, moving into temporary transitioning housing means following the rules – no smok-

FOR THE FAMILIES, CHILDREN

The recent grand re-opening of the Ronald McDonald House in Orange was also very much a Garden Grove event. The Garden Grove Strawberry Festival Association contributed $50,000 – over several years – toward an elevator in the new second wing of the building. The GGSFA also – decades ago – helped pay for the elevator in the original building, established in 1989. Among those attending the event on behalf of GGSFA were (left) Scott Weimer and Andrea Perez, flanking Ronald McDonald. The house is located at 383 S. Batavia St., and provides "home away from home" lodging for families whose children are being treated at a nearby hospital.

Suspect arrested in a store shooting incident

A 20-year-old Westminster man was arrested for assault with a deadly weapon in connection with a shooting inside a convenience store in Westminster on Thursday.

Officers responded to a report of the incident at about 1:30 a.m. in the 6500 block of Westminster Boulevard near Edwards Street. No one was hit by the gunfire.

The suspect fled the scene, but witnesses were able to identify him and Joshua Cruz was arrested in about two hours.

He was booked into Orange County Jail in Santa Ana. Anyone with information about this incident is asked to call Detective S. Gradilla at (714) 548-3778 or the WPD Watch Commander at (714) 548-3767.

Seek 4 suspects in shooting at occupied car

Four suspects are being sought in an incident in which shots were fired into an occupied vehicle in Westminster last Thursday afternoon, leading to several crashes and a lengthy road closure.

According to WPD Commander Andy Stowers, the incident took place in the intersection of Bolsa Avenue and Brookhurst Street before 3:45 p.m.

Arriving officers found an abandoned car with several bullet holes. Witnesses said the vehicle had three passengers, who left the scene on foot.

They were located by police and none of them had been wounded. The investigation showed that the victim's vehicle was moving northbound on Brookhurst and stopped for a red light at Bolsa.

Two suspects then exited other stopped vehicles and approached the victim's vehicle from behind. One of the suspects fired five to six times at the car, causing the driver of that vehicle to drive forward in attempt to escape the gunfire.

That resulted in collisions with "numerous" other vehicles. The victims ran from their automobiles while the suspects left in their vehicle.

The incident resulted in a long closure of the intersection. The suspects are described as four males, two of them about 18 to 25 years old and two of unknown ages.

Anyone with information about the incident – which is believed to be gang-related – is asked to call Detective Burton at (714) 548-3840 or the WPD Watch Commander at (714) 548-3767.

Harris: Take Away 'Microphone'

Demo candidate also condemns 'inflammatory' talk

Vice President Kamala Harris, speaking to a conference of Black journalists, urged those in public life to be aware of the impact on people of "inflammatory" language and –without mentioning former president Donald Trump by name – urged voters to make sure such speakers "can't have that microphone again."

The Democratic presidential nominee was referring to accusations made by Trump – the Republican nominee – that Haitian migrants in Springfield, Ohio were stealing and eating household pets such as dogs and cats.

Exploding 'beepers' kill nine, wound many more

Exploding hand-held pagers killed nine people and injured others in Lebanon Tuesday at the same time.

According to The New York Times, American and other officials believe the attack was aimed at members of the Iran-aligned militant group Hezbollah by the Israeli military.

The theory is that hundreds of pagers made in Taiwan were purchased, then had small amounts of explosives inserted and sent to Lebanon.

Six of the nine killed were Hezbollah fighters, the group told The Times. Many of the wounds were to eyes, faces and hands as the person carrying the "beepers" raised them to read the display and the explosions were triggered remotely.

Injuries were also reported in Syria. United Press International reports that the total number of those injured reached 2,750.

Weather: Getting a bit warmer

The temperatures in our West Orange County cities should stay steady until a new warming trend starts on Saturday.

The forecast for Wednesday calls for a daytime high of 74, which will continue through Friday with overnight lows in the low 60s.

The thermometer will rise to 80 during the day on Saturday.

'Diddy' Combs now faces federal racketeering and sex trafficking charges

Entertainer Sean "Diddy" Combs is now facing federal charges of racketeering, sex trafficking and engaging in transportation to engage in prostitution.

According to UPI, U.S. Attorney Damian Williams announced the charges on Tuesday, additional charges could be forthcoming and he pronounced Combs to be a "danger to the community."

In the indictment, he is accused of transporting commercial sex workers across state and international borders and "manipulated women" into sex performances with the use of drugs and physical violence.

Combs plans to plead not guilty.

'Speak No Evil' Sounds Very Scary

Another reason why you need a good cell phone

By Janet Noveck
AP Film Writer

Quick. Has there ever been a horror film set in a country home with a decent cell signal?

Nope, and there's no signal at Paddy and Ciara's house, either, deep in the English countryside. Soon, that land line will be cut, too, but we're getting ahead of ourselves.

Paddy and Ciara are that fun-but-somewhat-odd British couple whom Louise and Ben, early in "Speak No Evil," meet on their idyllic Tuscan family holiday. Americans based in London, Louise and Ben are at loose ends, with both job and relationship issues. And so, when the new acquaintances write to invite them for a country weekend, they decide to go.

After all, how bad could it be?

Don't answer that. There are many such moments in the first two-thirds of "Speak No Evil," a Hollywood remake of the 2022 Danish film, here starring a deeply menacing James McAvoy. Moments where Louise and Ben, out of mere politeness and social convention, act against their instincts, which tell them something is wrong — very wrong.

Director James Watkins and especially his excellent troupe of actors, adult and children alike, do a nice job of building the tension, slowly but surely. Until all bloody hell breaks loose, of course. And then, in its third act, "Speak No Evil" becomes an entertaining but routine horror flick, with predictable results.

But for a while, it's a way more intelligent film. And the jumpy moments work — I'll confess to literally springing out of my seat when someone uneventfully turned on a power drill.

JAMES McAVOY stars in "Speak No Evil" (Universal Pictures/Blumhouse).

Movie Review

We begin in stunning Tuscany, where Louise (Mackenzie Davis, in the film's most accessible and empathetic performance) and Ben (Scoot McNairy, all nerves and insecurity) are vacationing with 11-year-old daughter Agnes (Alix West Lefler). At the pool, they meet Paddy (McAvoy) and Ciara (Aisling Franciosi), a British couple with a disabled son, Ant, apparently born without a proper tongue.

One day in town, Paddy offers Agnes a ride on his Vespa. Louise is frightened to see her daughter disappear on the motorbike with a strange man, but it would be churlish to say no, right?

In briefly sketched backstories, we learn that Louise and Ben moved to London for Ben's job, but he was soon downsized out. As for Paddy, all we know is he's a doctor.

At least, we think he is. The Americans, accepting the weekend invitation back in England, arrive at the secluded country home in dead of night. Immediately something feels off. The rooms are quirky but musty, the sheets stained. How can a doctor live like this, Louise asks? Ben brushes off her concern, quipping that even Downton Abbey is in terrible shape.

When the couple cooks dinner, Paddy proudly explains they've butchered their prize goose in their guests' honor. He proffers Louise a forkful — even though he well knows she's a vegetarian. Louise is disgusted but, politely, takes a bite.

Good: ★★★

Daughter Agnes, too, is freaked out. She's being made to sleep on the floor next to Ant (Dan Hough, poignant in a role with no words.) And the next evening, when everyone dresses for a special dinner out, Paddy and Ciara inform Louise and Ben that the kids will stay home with a strange male babysitter. "We've had mannies before," Ben tells Louise, unconvincingly.

Soon, though, we have the obligatory attempt to flee, followed by the "Oh no, we have to go back" moment — you know, where you're yelling: "No!" But return the family does.

In perhaps the movie's most effective scene, the two kids have

I didn’t even know where Tulane is – New Orleans, as it turns out. But there goes my theory that the Pac-12 was going to be a geographically sane conference. There’s even been talk of trying to poach Clemson in South Carolina.

What a mess. I’m not sure where the almost-dead “Pac-2” got the juice to have that kind of cross-continental pull, but I hope it’s all just smoke.

The next thing you know conference lineups will be scrambled every year, like kids choosing up sides on a playground.

What Makes for A MVP Dept.: As the regular baseball season draws to a close, the question has arisen: does a player who is primarily a designated hitter qualified to be a league Most Valuable Player?

Of course, this refers to Shohei Ohtani. Well, why not? He’s got the highest OPS (on-base plus slugging) in the National League. He’s second in most hits, first in home runs (48) and RBIs (110) and second in stolen bases (48).

J.K. DOBBINS of the Chargers begins his touchdown flip in the team’s 26-3 win over the Panthers (Ty Novak/Chargers photo)

Dobbins helps set the pace for the Chargers

By Steve Reed
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — As he raced toward the end zone at the conclusion of a nifty 43-yard run, J.K. Dobbins had only one thought in his mind: Don’t get caught.

Well that, and why not cap off this run with something special?

Dobbins somersaulted his way into the end zone Sunday for his second touchdown of the season, helping the Los Angeles Chargers romp past the Carolina Panthers 26-3 for their second straight win to open the season under first-year head coach Jim Harbaugh.

Dobbins became the first Chargers running back in history to post back-to-back 100-yard rushing games to start the season, which is saying something considering LaDainian Tomlinson’s Hall of Fame career.

Dodgers fall; Angels finally win one

In an old-fashioned slugfest, the Los Angeles Dodgers overcame an early deficit but eventually fell 11-9 to the Miami Marlins Tuesday night at LoanDepot Park.

Although the defeat allowed the Blue Crew’s lead in the national league West to shrink to three games over the second place San Diego Padres, there was a highlight: Shohei Ohtani hit a two-run home run that was his 48th round-tripper of the year, getting nearer an historic 50-homer, 50-stolen base season.

Max Muncy drove in five runs with two two-run doubles and a single.

Back in Anaheim, the Los Angeles Angels snapped a six-game losing streak in Anaheim with a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Griffin Canning (6-13) pitched six shutout innings, yielding just three hits.

He struck out six batters and walked two. Taylor Ward patted 3-for-4 and Eric Wagan hit a two-run home run in the sixth inning.

The Angels are now 61-90 and remain in fifth place in the American League West.

Despite records, it's still The Big Game

Edison, F. Valley will meet again at LeBard Stadium

For many years one of the biggest Orange County high school football contests of the season was The Battle For the Bell between rivals Edison and Fountain Valley.

Throughout the Seventies and Eighties they battled to settle the Sunset League title before capacity crowds at LeBard Stadium on the Orange Coast College campus in Costa Mesa.

Well, times have changed. The Chargers have gained the upper hand; the games are no longer close and – as of this season – there is no Sunset League (for football at least).

But despite that, a big crowd is expected at LeBard on Friday. Edison is 2-2 after playing a tough pre-league schedule; the Barons are 1-3. The green-and-gold have to be considered the favorites, but in a big game, anything can happen.

The High 5

Our top five area high school football teams.

WEEK FOUR

1. Edison Chargers	2-2
2. Western Pioneers	2-2
3. Huntington Beach Oilers	2-2
4. Marina Vikings	4-0
5. Orange Panthers	0-4

On the bubble: Pacifica (1-3), Westminster (2-2), Los Amigos (3-0), La Quinta (3-0), Rancho Alamitos (2-0).

SO CLOSE: Garden Grove High's football team has a new coach – Matthew LemMon – and a rough start at 1-3. But that could be a little deceiving. The Argonauts lost two of those games by two and one points, meaning they are four points away from being 3-1 instead.

They have some real talent in running back Quentin Pacelli, who is averaging 126 yards rushing per game, and sophomore quarterback Calvin Keyovphan, who threw for two scores last week against Gahr.

CLIMB THE LADDER: This week's High Five for The Tribune coverage areas is topped again by Edison, which has evened its record at 2-2.

You'll notice that these rankings – based on the point system of MaxPreps.com – has three teams with 2-2 marks and one at 0-4. The only one with a winning record is Marina (4-0).

That's because of strength of schedule.

As we said a few weeks ago, tough games can make for tough teams.

THE KICKOFF: Here's this week's schedule for teams serving our West Orange County cities. As always, the dates, times, locations, opponents and days are subject to change without notice. Times are generally 7 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 19

Ocean View (0-4) at Bolsa Grande (1-2); Los Amigos (3-0) at Nogales (2-1).

Friday, Sept. 20

Edison (2-2) vs. Fountain Valley (1-3) at Orange Coast College; Garden Grove (1-3) at University/Irvine (1-2); Huntington Beach (2-2) at Mayfair (3-1); La Quinta (3-0) at Glenn (1-2); Esperanza (2-1) at Marina (4-0); Redondo Union (2-1) at Orange (0-4); Pacifica (1-3) at Walnut (3-1); Godinez Fundamental (2-2) at Rancho Alamitos (3-0); Estancia (2-1) at Santiago (1-2); Lynwood (3-0) at Magnolia (0-4).

Hey, Aaron Donald: can you please come back?

Rams defense isn't the same without you

By John Marshal
AP Sports Writer

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' defense, still adjusting to playing without Aaron Donald, had no answer for Kyler Murray and the Arizona Cardinals.

The offense, decimated by injuries on the line, had little hope of creating running holes or protecting quarterback Matthew Stafford.

The result: a 41-10 blowout loss to the Cardinals on Sunday that ended Los Angeles' nine-game winning streak in the desert.

"There's not anything positive I can take away from today," Rams coach Sean McVay said. "It was an incredibly humbling three-hour window. They did what they wanted to do from the start and we didn't do anything to give ourselves a chance."

The Rams (0-2) had dominated the series against the Cardinals (1-1) since McVay took over in 2017, winning 13 of 15, including nine straight in Glendale.

A slew of injuries — particularly to the offensive line — and breakdowns left the Rams whirling around State Farm Stadium like a dissipating dust devil.

"That's not how we want to look and that's not who we are," Rams defensive end Kobie Turner said.

The Rams' offense had some good moments against Detroit last week despite numerous offensive line injuries, pushing the Lions to overtime before losing 26-20.

Los Angeles' patchwork offensive line was no match for the Cardinals on an ugly Sunday in the desert.

Arizona's shifting defense caused all kinds of problems, quickly closing holes before Rams runners could get there. Los Angeles finished with 53 yards rushing on 20 carries. More concerning was the pressure put on quarterback Matthew Stafford.

The Cardinals got off blocks so quickly Stafford had little time to decipher the defense, much put together a dance routine.

The parents sit back proudly to watch, but repeatedly, Paddy stops the routine to admonish, brutally, his son, telling him he's out of rhythm. McAvoy, a terrific actor who has made villainous part of his potent toolbox, is truly chilling as he becomes unhinged by his son's inability to keep time.

Then there's the scene fans of "The Shining" will recognize as the "Here's Johnny," Jack Nicholson moment. By then, everything's gone off the rails, and it's time for the blood to flow, predictably.

If there's a moral here, it's to trust those instincts when things feel wrong. But if movie characters did that, the horror genre would not exist.

Still, there's some satisfaction to be had, especially in the creative use of household implements to inflict pain and death. Revenge, they say, is a dish best served cold — except in horror films, where it is served raw and bloody, with a side of toxic cleaning fluid.

"Speak No Evil," a Universal Pictures and Blumhouse release, has been Rated R by the Motion Picture Association "for some strong violence, language, some sexual content and brief drug use."

Dobbins had a huge game against Carolina, finishing with 131 yards on 17 carries and setting the tone for the offense.

"I saw an opening and I took it," Dobbins said. "Last week, I got caught and I wasn't going to let that happen this week and hopefully I'm not going to let it happen again. If someone runs a 4.2 — I don't run a 4.2 — they may catch me."

Through two games this season, Dobbins looks better than ever, averaging a whopping 9.9 per carry and 133 yards rushing per game. But nothing says you're all the way back from an injury quite like a forward flip into the end zone.

ing, drinking alcohol, stealing, using drugs, fighting, etc. — which boil down to "staying clean and sober."

A great number of those either can't or don't want to do that. As hard as their lives are, they evidently find it harder to develop the kind of self-control necessary to function.

The problem is not just with the homeless. Many — too many — property owners — neglect buildings and leave them derelict and a haven for criminal activity. They consider hiring security a waste of money that could otherwise be devoted to bigger profits. There's one very large retailer I'm thinking of that allowed its parking lots to be practically overrun with va-grants before finally awakening to the necessity of protecting customers and employees.

I am hugely in favor of spending whatever it takes to provide for people who are rendered homeless through no fault of their own, especially where children are concerned.

But enough is enough. Reasonable restrictions with appropriate punishments are appropriate and necessary. Strict enforcement and tough sanctions have dramatically reduced deaths from drunk driving.

It's time for "tough love" to take its place in society, even for those of us with tender hearts.
