King Tides flooded areas, will return in November

114 homes, buildings damaged, fire ignited by saltwater

By David Arthur
Orange County Tribune

The "King Tides" which have battered the Orange County coastline may be tapering off this weekend, but they'll be back later this month.

On Saturday (today), the high tide is forecast to hit Huntington Beach at 1:23 p.m. with waves estimated to be 5.05 feet high. Sunday's high tide (at 1:58 p.m.) will reach 4.63 feet, and Monday will be slightly smaller at 4.4 feet (at 3:33 p.m.).

According to the California Coastal Commission, Orange County beaches will have King Tides on Nov. 24-26 and Dec. 23-25, with waves one to two feet above normal peak tides.

According to Huntington Beach officials, about 114 homes and structures sustained water damage this week. Six homes were yellow-tagged, which means that access to the building is restricted due to safety concerns.

One structure fire was ignited following flooding because of salt water exposure to a lithium -ion battery.

Most of the flooding and damage was in Sunset Beach, Huntington Harbour and other low-lying areas.

King tides are the result of the gravitational pull of the moon when it aligns with the pull of the sun, creating ocean tides higher than usual.

The surf affects beaches and low-lying areas.

Ex-GGPD Sgt. Arrested for Sex Offenses

Facing 14 years in prison if he's convicted of all

By Jim Tortolano
Orange County Tribune

Charles "Chuck" Starnes, a former sergeant with the Garden Grove Police Department, has been charged with sexually assaulting two employees in separate incidents.

According to the GGPD, Starnes, 52, retired while under investigation for allegations of sexual harassment.

The Orange County District Attorney charged Starnes on Oct. 16 with one felony count of kidnapping to commit a sex offense, one felony count of sexual penetration by a foreign object by force, one felony count of sexual penetration by a foreign object involving an intoxicating or controlled substance and one felony count of assault with intent to commit a sexual offense.

He faces a maximum sentence of seven to 14 years in state prison if convicted on all counts.

On Thursday, the the U.S. Marshals Service, in cooperation with the California Highway Patrol, served an arrest warrant and took Starnes into custody. The criminal charges against him were unsealed by an Orange County Superior Court Judge on Friday.

The investigation is ongoing. The GGPD is continuing to cooperate with the OCDA's office.

15% raise mulled for city firefighters union

Hunt. Beach City Council

A proposed contract with the Huntington Beach Fire Association union that would give firefighters a 15 percent pay raise over three years goes before the Huntington Beach City Council when it meets on Tuesday.

The Memorandum of Understanding calls for 5 percent salary increases for each of the next three years, beginning on Jan. 1, 2027.

The fiscal impact of the pay raises over three

Total cost of the proposal for the three-year period is $5,225,825.

The council has previously approved contracts with the police officers union and the police management group of 17 percent over the three-year period. Those agreements will require the city to take money from city reserves.

The staff report accompanying the Tuesday agenda item did not mention possible impacts on the reserves.

The city council will meet in closed session at 4 p.m. and regular meeting at 6 p.m. in the Council Chambers at 2000 Main St. (at Yorktown Avenue).

When Golden State began its turn to blue

Retorts
Jim Tortolano

Nothing New Dept.: Michael Gates, once the controversial city attorney for Huntington Beach, is running for the state Attorney General in the Nov. 3 election, and – frankly – he doesn't stand a chance.

There hasn't been a Republican elected to statewide office since 2002, which – coincidently – was the last (and only) time the Angels won the World Series.

If you want to know why California, for a long time a "purple" state, became deep blue you only have to look back to the 1988 election for a state Assembly seat in Orange County. Curt Pringle had made three unsuccessful runs for the Garden Grove City Council, but had more success when he got the GOP nomination after the death of incumbent Dick Longshore.

On Election Day, the Orange County Republican Party hired a security guard company to send uniformed operatives to polling places in Santa Ana to "protect" against voting by illegal aliens in the contested district.

Charges of voter intimidation were leveled and a controversy ensued.

An investigation by the FBI cleared Pringle of any involvement, but the Orange County GOP paid $400,000 in a settlement of a civil lawsuit.

Pringle won the election but the widely-publicized incident gave legs to the idea that his party was not the friend of Hispanics, and there began the shift of that ethnic group toward the Democrats, which

Well, now they still have eight more lives.

Two cats were rescued Wednesday from a garage fire in Westminster by Orange County Fire Authority personnel.

According to the OCFA the blaze occurred in the 5100 block of Kingscross Road in the Westminster Village development.

Firefighters arriving at the the single-story home learned that the flames had extended into the attic. They quickly knocked down the flames, keeping the fire from damaging the rest of the home,

In the course of the operation, two cats were found and carried safely from the scene. No persons were injured and traffic in the area was controlled by the Westminster Police Department.

Commissioners Aren't Removed

Namquan Nguyen changes mind; Amy Phan West was absent

By Jim Tortolano
Orange County Tribune

A storm of protest over the proposed removal of two city commissioners on Wednesday night at the Westminster City Council meeting was followed by a withdrawal and an open question.

Councilmember Namquan Nguyen (District 4) had asked for the removal of Donald Lank from the city Parks and Recreation Commission and the city Traffic Commission, but on Wednesday night he changed his mind.

"We had a very good conversation," said Namquan Nguyen, "and I have changed my mind." He described the issue as a "second chance to work together with mutual respect."

The council voted 4-0 in favor of taking no action on his original request. Councilmember Amy Phan West (District 1) was absent.

DONALD LANK
Not out of a job, after all

West was considering removing Alex Vaz from the Cultural Arts Commission, but – being absent from the meeting – the council voted to take no action, again on a 4-0 vote.

Westminster City Council

But City Attorney Scott Porter pointed out that since she had appointed Vaz – under city policy – she had the right to remove him from office without the consent of the rest of the council.

The issue of removing commissioners for no stated reason was widely criticized during the oral communications portion of the meeting.

Speakers claimed that the proposed removals were "reprisals" for comments made by the commissioners. The two council members at issue were criti-

Federal Court Blocks Vote 'Segregation'

Upholds lower court ruling on DOJ's request

CALIFORNIA BALLOTS won't be set aside in search for illegal voting (Wikipedia)

A request from the U.S. Department of Justice to "segregate" the ballots sent to about 20,000 people in California who may not be U.S. citizens was rejected by a federal appeals court on Friday.

According to the Associated Press, the ruling upheld a decision on Wednesday by a lower court which denied the request.

"As the district court found – and we discern no clear error – there is no feasible way to identify and segregate the ballots of specific individuals without having potentially catastrophic effects on the whole system," the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals said on a 2-1 ruling.

Critics of the DOJ's action called it an illegal attempt to interfere with voting and an attempt to cast doubt about the integrity of the election process.

The Justice Department issued a statement: "Federal law prohibits non-citizens from voting. Enforcing the law is not an agenda item. It is the Department's job."

Wall Street takes a big hit as tech stocks lose ground

Concern over spending on artificial intelligence, tied to "disappointing" earnings results from the largest technology firms, led to a pronounced decline on Wall Street on Friday.

United Press International is reporting that the Dow Jones Average fell 579 points. The Nasdaq Composite declined 2.8 percent and the S&P 500 dropped by 1.8 percent.

Amazon, for example, reported a "negative free cash flow" of $42.4 billion, leading to a decline of its share's value by almost 6 percent. Other companies such as Intel and Alphabet (parent company of Google) also saw declines.

Intel shares fell by over 5 percent and its revenues fell by 5 percent from its computing physical artificial intelligence division.

Weekend rain and then sun

The hot days and nights are behind us now. The forecast for our West Orange County cities is for some rain over the weekend and moderate temperatures going forward. Saturday will have a 44 percent chance of afternoon showers, with a daytime high of 71 and an overnight low of 61.

On Sunday, morning showers – 57 percent – are predicted with temps of 72 (56). Monday will warm a bit to 75 (56) and Tuesday to 76 (56) with both days mostly sunny.

Poll: President Trump's approval rating at 37 percent

A new public opinion poll by Emerson College showed President Donald Trump's approval rating at 37 percent, down from 39 percent in September, according to USA Today.

This most recent survey was conducted Oct. 24-26 and released on Friday. It was conducted among 1,000 "likely voters" with a margin of error of 3 percent.

A Real Clear Politics average of recent presidential approval polls put Trump's backing at 38.4 percent with 59.7 percent disapproval.

Other polls show that Democrats are making strides toward taking control of Congress. Most observers believe that the House of Representatives will almost certainly become "blue," while they are giving a 50-50 chance of winning control of the Senate.

‘Minions,’ Music and ‘Nocturne’

The AP selects best streaming choices this week

By The Associated Press

The AP guide to what to stream this week:

A docuseries about Matthew Perry and the latest “Minions” movie are some of the new television, films, music and games headed to a device near you.

Also among the streaming offerings worth your time this week, as selected by The Associated Press’ entertainment journalists: Daddy Yankee’s new album, the fourth season of “The Gilded Age” and the video game “Phantom Blade Zero.”

New movies to stream starting through Nov. 1

■ “Minions & Monsters ” (Wednesday on Peacock) is the third “Minions” movie and the seventh in the overall “Despicable Me” franchise. But the film, directed by Pierre Coffin, the voice of the Minions, is one of the yellow guys’ most charming. In the 1920s-set film, the Minions come to Hollywood as silent movie stars who embark on making a monster movie. In his review, AP’s Mark Kennedy wrote: “The movie has playful references to old screen gods … but the kids in the audience won’t get them and their parents are just too tired.”

■ In “Hanging by a Wire” (Wednesday on Paramount+), director Mohammed Ali Naqvi chronicles a 2023 rescue in Pakistan. Eight people (two adults and six teenage boys) were suspended in a cable car over a chasm after a wire broke.

With archival footage and first-hand accounts, the film chronicles the drama from every angle, on the ground and above.

‘MINIONS & MONSTERS’ is the seventh in the franchise (Peacock).

New music to stream to start throigh MNv. 1

■ Back in 2022, the reggaeton icon Daddy Yankee announced his retirement. It was short-lived. Songs — written and released after revealing he had converted to Christianity — followed. And on Friday, he will release a new album, “La Postal,” a 15-track concept album where each track is a love letter to, well, love: romantic love, familial love, self-love and so on. The first taste arrived in the form of “BOTZ (Kiss Me Again),” high-energy, mainstream-friendly romantic reggaeton from the man who knows it best.

■ The Canadian rock band Nickelback will release their 11th studio album, “Everything Under the Sun,” also on Friday. Expect their familiar recipe of glossy hooks, post-grunge rock riffs and gravelly vocals, from energetic opener “Rattle The Cage” to power ballads like “Make Me Love You.” There are also a few surprises: Guest appearances range from Sammy Hagar to actor Ryan Reynolds.

■ Country star Dustin Lynch will release his seventh studio album, “Clean Slate,” also on Friday. Across 12 tracks, Lynch sharpens his tools; these are radio-ready stompers in the making. “

There’s a lot of life on this record,” Lynch said in a press release. “Falling for somebody, missing somebody, looking back at things you might do differently now, going out and having a damn good time, and figuring out what matters when everything else gets quiet.”

New series to stream starting through Nov. 1

■ Parker Posey hosts “The Mob,” a Hulu competition series from the team behind “The Traitors.” Twelve celebrities — including Aida Turturro, Bruno Tonioli, Debi Mazar and Joe Gorga — live in an Italian villa and complete tasks drawn from mob movies, all for a shot at up to $250,000. Underdogs showed some bite on field

Never Give Up Dept. A tip of The Tribune cap to a couple of teams that have defied the odds and come through this October.

First off are the Milwaukee Brewers, who breezed through the MLB playoffs – including taking four of five from the two-time defending champion Los Angeles Dodgers – to win a first-ever World Series.

That's a pretty big accomplishment for the team from the smallest market in baseball. It just goes to show that – sometimes – smart moves and a bit of luck can overcome big budgets.

Of course, the Brew Crew from Wisconsin got a big boost from Orange County, California Three players from the team hailed from the OC, including two from Marina High in Huntington Beach and one from Pacifica High in Garden Grove.

Jake Bauers, who was the NLCS MVP, is a former Viking, as is pitcher Trevor Megill. Infielder Joey Ortiz used to roam the diamond for the Mariners.

Megill is probably the most unappreciated OC alum on the team. During the post-season, he accounted for five saves, 11 strikeouts and only three walks. He yielded just two runs in nine innings pitched.

Ortiz didn't have a great post-season, hitting just .095, but he helped get the Brewers there, batting .270 during the regular season.

The other team worth saluting is the Garden Grove High football team. Grove used to

Are Rams-Bolts Rivals?

'Roommates' don't have much history

By Greg Beacham
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Although the Los Angeles Rams and the Los Angeles Chargers share a stadium, they don't share a rivalry.

The NFL schedule only puts these teams together once every four years, and they have neither the long history nor the recent animus necessary to make Sunday's meeting into a true crosstown showdown.

"It's a big town to cross," Rams quarterback Matthew Stafford said with a grin. "I don't run into those guys too often, to be honest with you. I don't really want to make that drive. Nobody does."

Indeed, while the Rams and Bolts have called Los Angeles home since their relocations a decade ago, this conurbation is vast. The teams' training complexes are more than 30 miles apart, with the Rams deep in the western San Fernando Valley and the Chargers down in coastal El Segundo.

Stafford has been a local for several years now, so he knows it might be more pleasant to face the Chargers' pass rush than that drive to the South Bay in afternoon traffic.

But Stafford and the Rams (3-4) also realize they will be facing a desperate bunch of roommates this weekend: The Chargers are a shocking 0-6 in a start that makes the Rams' early stumbles look minor in comparison.

After beginning the season with legitimate aspirations for a third straight playoff berth and more, the Chargers are the NFL's only winless team and its lowest-scoring team. But the Bolts are fresh from a bye week that included a thorough examination of how they've found themselves in such a mess, and the Rams' defense will be the first to see what Jim

The Lakers, Clippers both fall

The Los Angeles Clippers fell behind early and stayed that way on Friday night, losing 127-101 on the road to the Minnesota Timberwolves in an In-Season Tournament game.

Trailing by 13 points at halftime, the Clips were unable to close the gap and suffered their fourth loss in five games.

Darius Garland led the visitors with 24 points. Isaiah Jackson pulled down seven rebounds and Kris Dunn dished out seven assists.

NHL and NBA

For the T-Wolves (4-2), LaMelo Ball had 24 points. Rudy Gobert grabbed 13 rebounds and Bones Hyland had eight assists.

The Clippers will next be in action on Sunday against the Golden State Warriors (2-3) on the road.

As for the Los Angeles Lakers, they faced the Warriors on Friday and didn't do any better, falling 112-95 in another In-Season Tournament contest.

The Lakers jumped out to a 38-15 first quarter lead, but the W's flipped the script with a 38-15 second quarter performance that tied the game up at the half.

After that the game belonged to Golden State, pulling away to a 17-point win to improve to 3-3. The Lakers fell to 4-2. It was the Warriors' third win in a row.

Luka Doncic scored 37 points for the Lakers and added seven rebounds and five assists.

Friday Night Lights Shine For HB, Orange

And Argonauts beat BP for a CIF-SS berth

The Huntington Beach High and Orange High football teams made history on Friday, winning their final regular season games and finishing the season with perfect 10-0 records.

With a 57-31 shootout against El Toro, the Panthers are the Foxtrot League champs. Star Thomas was again the star, completing 15 of 22 passes for 289 yards and four touchdowns.

Jeremiah Dunklin carried 13 times for 111 yards and two scores.

The Oilers got some big plays in their 35-14 win over Laguna Beach to clinch the Delta League crown. In addition to two TD passes by Brady Edmunds, the orange-and-black got a 65-yard scoring run by Kyle Crump, a 95-yard kickoff return by Skyler Robinson and a 56-yard pick six play by Dylan Bruce.

Los Amigos (9-1, 5-0) defeated University (6-4,4-1) High of Irvine 34-31 to claim the Omicron League title. Trailing 17-14 at the half, the Lobos outscored the Trojans 20-14 in the second half.

Dropping from the unbeaten ranks was Rancho Alamitos (9-1, 4-1), which fell 33-0 to Ocean View (9-1, 5-0) in a contest for the Sigma League title.

The CIF-SS will announce playoff pairings Sunday at 10 a.m.

It was a long time coming but the Garden Grove High Argonaut football team – which started 0-6 – managed to salvage the season by winning three of its last four games and qualifying for the CIF-SS playoffs as the third place team from the Omicron League.

Rising Rams vs. Sinking Chargers at SoFI

Harbaugh and Mike McDaniel have added.

"I feel like every stone, any part that we could look to better, that's the way we responded," Harbaugh said.

Harbaugh is keeping McDaniel in charge of the offense and play-calling for Justin Herbert, who got a week off to rest a body that has already taken 21 sacks in a miserable season.

"I think it was a very helpful and useful week," Herbert said. "Got to meet with Mike a lot that week."

The Rams are still below .500 entering November after beginning their own season as a Super Bowl favorite, and they likely can't afford a slip-up against a winless opponent during the softest stretch of their schedule. But the Chargers' unrealized potential is a concern to Rams coach Sean McVay, a longtime admirer of McDaniel's offensive innovation and Harbaugh's old-school leadership style.

"I really couldn't care less what the record says," McVay said. "I see a team that's really good. They've had a chance to win a lot of these games."

With the Chargers coming out of that busy bye week, the Rams are in the unusual position of trying to determine what McDaniel and Harbaugh have chosen to change during their week off.

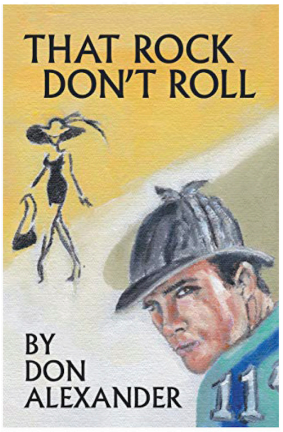

"Maybe you project up some things that they would maybe do, if you're saying, 'If we were in a similar situation, what would that look like?'" McVay said. "But you want to be careful not to overthink it and play good, sound defense. There still are a lot of challenging and stressful things that they've done on tape that we have to be ready for."

The Chargers' defense has been largely solid this season, but the Rams have the league's most productive offense by yardage despite an inability to score at a commensurate rate. Along with the NFL's most productive passing game, the Rams rolled to a strong win over the Raiders last week behind a pair of 90-yard rushing games from both Kyren Williams and Blake Corum.

"You attack it as you do any other week," Stafford said. "We don't really look at the other team's record and go, 'They're good or they're bad.' This is NFL football. They have Pro Bowl-caliber players on that sideline and a team capable of doing anything."
