New Mayor Decision for the Surf City

Ben Davis will join the council Tuesday night

Hunt. Beach City Council

By Jim Tortolano
Orange County Tribune

It'll be the changing of the guard at Tuesday's meeting of the Huntington Beach City Council.

The council will select the mayor to serve in 2027, bid goodbye to Councilmember Gracey Van Der Mark and seat new Councilmember Ben Davis.

Additionally, three members re-elected in the Nov. 6 election – will be sworn in for another term.

The mayor is not chosen by the public but from among the members of the council. There is a protocol for selecting the mayor based on seniority on the council, but the council can select whoever they want.

Now serving as mayor is Casey McKeon.

Re-elected in November are McKeon, Pat Burns and Andrew Gruel with Davis the newcomer. It was an historically close election, in which the candidates finishing third through fifth (four seats were contested) were within 100 votes. Gruel, for example, was just four votes ahead of Davis, according to the Orange County Registrar of Voters.

Also sworn in as city attorney will be incumbent Mike Vigliotta, who ran

Rose Center contract on agenda

Westminster City Council

A special meeting of the Westminster City Council will be held on Monday to consider an agreement for the management of the Rose Center theater, ballroom and banquet facilities in the Civic Center as a "multi-cultural center."

The agreement will be with TLC Group, LLC.

The terms of the deal will include:

• a deposit of $250,000 by TLC with the city, which can be used for "facility-related improvements."

• an additional $250,000 will be managed by the the operator for improvement and start-up costs.

• a monthly rental payment of $15,000 will be paid to the city, with an annual increase of 3.5 percent. Rent won't be re-

'Blue wave' hit area candidates

By David Arthur
Orange County Tribune

LOCAL ELECTION 2026

The "blue wave" that put Democrats into control of Congress and gave them a majority of governorships threw cold water on the political ambitions of several area politicians.

At the statewide level, Michael Gates – the controversial former Huntington Beach city attorney – lost a bid for the California attorney general job.

Gates, a Republican, with 34.5 percent of the vote, lost to incumbent Democrat Rob Bonta with 65.5 percent. Even in Orange County, Gates only received 44.8 percent.

The transfer of operation of the 416-seat Rose Center from the Friends of the Rose Center Theater and Crystal Rose Catering has been controversial. Councilmember Carlos Manzo, who was elected the next mayor on Nov. 3, opposed the change and alleged that the council passed over the best-qualified bidder in favor of the TLC Group.

In the State Senate District 36, incumbent Republican Tony Strickland – a former Huntington Beach mayor and councilmember –lost more narrowly, being defeated by Democratic challenger Chris Duncan by 51.6 percent to 48.4 percent.

Gracey Van Der Mark, a member of the Huntington Beach City Council, lost a close one to Democrat Chris Kluwe in the 72nd State Assembly District race. She polled 49.8 percent to Kluwe's 50.2 percent, a margin of about 900 votes.

Tri Ta, the former mayor of Westminster, lost his 70th District State Assembly seat to Democrat Paula Swift by 52.1

Yardhouse will replace Buca on Harbor

Retorts
Jim Tortolano

While I Was Reclining Dept.
As you may have noticed, our e-newspaper version of The Orange County Tribune was on another "leave of absence" as editor Jim (that's me!) went on some frivolous adventure that involved several cardiologists and a certain amount of anesthetics.

Here's some of what we missed when we were loafing around.

The Yard House, a trendy restaurant/pub, will be coming to Garden Grove (on Harbor Boulevard, north of Chapman Avenue). But don't hold your breath. The location is the same as the current Buca di Beppo, but they're not going to move in, exactly. They're going to demolish that building and construct a new one.

That'sbeen approved by the planning commission last monrh. Don't count your craft beers before they hatch. However, that looks like a win for the community. We liked Buca, but the food portions were so big (and pricey) that one was likely to visit only once in a long while.

The other news item that caught my eye was the announcement by Assemblyman Tri Ta stating that despite his defeat in his re-election campaign for the 70th Assembly District, he was not done.

Ta, a Republican, was defeated by Democratic challenger Paula Swift. The "Blue Wave" that washed out a lot of GOP officeholders apparently soaked Ta. But he's hoping that his prospects will be better in 2028.

"I am deeply grateful for the

A DRUNK DRIVING/driver's license checkpoint is scheduled for Dec. 12-13 in Garden Grove. Note: This is an AI-generated photo-illustration and may not represent the actual activities of GGPD (Shutterstock).

A drunk driving/CDL checkpoint Dec. 12-13 in a G. Grove location

A checkpoint for motorists driving under the influence and for California Drivers' Licenses will be conducted by the Garden Grove Police Department from 8 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 12 to 3 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 13 at an undisclosed location.

DUI/CDL checkpoint locations are determined based upon data showing incidents of impaired driving-related crashes and arrests. The primary purpose of DUI/CDL checkpoints are to promote public safety by taking suspected impaired drivers off the road.

In 2024, 1,311 people were killed in alcohol-involved crashes in California, a 3.2% decrease from 2023, but nearly 50% increase from 2014. "Impaired drivers put others on the road at significant risk," said Garden Grove Police Chief Amir El-Farra.

"Any prevention measures that reduce the number of impaired drivers on our roads significantly improves traffic safety," he added.

The Garden Grove Police Department reminds the public that impaired driving is not limited to just alcohol; as some prescription medications and over-the-counter drugs may interfere with driving. While medicinal and recreational marijuana are legal, driving under the influence of marijuana is illegal.

Drivers charged with a first-time DUI face an average of $13,500 in fines and penalties, as well as a suspended driver's license.

Funding for this program was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Approval given to 79-unit housing development, 3-2

A divided Stanton City Council gave its approval to a 79-unit townhome development at its meeting on Tuesday.

Voting in favor were Mayor David Shawver and Councilmenbers Gary Taylor and John Warren. Against were Councilmembers Victor Barrios and Donald Torres.

What was controversial was that at issue were amendments that would allow Bonanni Development Company to build the project at 12200 Beach Blvd., but without the seven "affordable" units originally agreed to but instead with the option to pay in-lieu fees instead.

Also at that meeting, the council voted 5-0 in favor of authorizing an application for a state grant for the Harry M. Dotson Park revitalization project.

That park is located at 10350 Fern Ave., north of Cerritos Avenue.

Might Congress 'Re-Think' Tariffs?

'Blue wave' may change outlook in Congress

With Democrats taking control of both houses of Congress, they're hoping to take aim at President Donald Trump's tariffs.

According to the Associated Press, they may get some help from Republicans. Interviews with "more than half a dozen" congressional Republicans have indicated there was a willingness to "review" tariffs.

Post-election surveys indicate that the rising cost of living – the "affordability crisis" – was a factor in the "blue wave" that flipped Congress toward Democrats, as many voters blamed the tariffs for the increasing prices for food, fuel and energy.

MID-TERM ELECTIONS may alter the tariff picture in 2027 (Shutterstock).

"A re-think is indeed in order," said Sen. Todd Young (R-Indiana). But Trump could veto any new legislation and there remains the constitutional issue of which branch of government has the power to impose tariffs, which can be considered a form of tax.

Taxing power belongs to Congress, but Trump has been able to circumvent that by declaring the tariffs "emergency" actions.

Thanksgiving storms hit power and air travel hard

Powerful storms striking both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts have knocked out power for almost 700,000 homes and snarled Thanksgiving holiday travel.

United Press International is reporting that at its peak, the power interruption affected about 940,000 homes, with Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Maryland having been the states most affected.

As of Friday, travel disruptions – 91 flights cancelled and 350 delayed – were reported. On Thursday 62 flights were cancelled and 2,700 delayed.

The weather complications led to the postponing of the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Parade in New York City for the first time. It's now scheduled for Saturday at 8:30 a.m.

Weather: Cooler and with chance of showers, thunder

After a brief period of summer-like days, our West Orange County cities will be getting some cooler fall-ish weather. The forecast for Saturday is for a daytime high of 77 with an overnight low of 56. Morning clouds will be followed by afternoon sun. Sunday should be similar with temps of 74 (60). Showers are expected on Monday with a high of 70 and a low of 60.

Tuesday will have rain and thunder with a high of 65 and a low of 52, according to forecasters.

Zelensky calls Putin-Trump friendship to be 'strange'

Reacting to a published interview in which Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky called President Donald Trump's "friendship" with Russian President Vladimir Putin "strange," Trump defended his approach.

According to the Washington Post, Trump said, "We want to make a deal. We want to stop the killing … I could walk in and say, 'I don't like you.'"

He added, "The biggest problem with that settlement [of the war between Russia and Ukraine] is that you have two leaders who really hate each other."

Zelensky had compared the Trump-Putin relationship to being friends with Adolf Hitler.

A Fulfilling 'Fiddler' at the Gem

Beautiful show on stage for the whole family

By Thom DeMartino
Orange County Tribune

ERIC SCHIFFER has the lead role in "Fiddler on the Roof" (Ron Lyon photo).

Family. Even with tradition and the passage of time, family is often what stays with and sustains us.

"Fiddler on the Roof" is now playing at Garden Grove's award-winning Gem Theater, and it's a beautiful show for the whole family. Matter of fact, family is the centerpiece of this production, directed by the theater's One More Productions company co-founder Damian Lorton.

The story opens in the little town of Anatevka, a small village in Imperial Russia in 1905, just on the cusp of the Russian Revolution. While there is a mix of cultures in the town, there is a large Jewish community constantly striving to make ends meet, while sometimes struggling against the bias of the other townsfolk.

The show opens with the family patriarch, Tevye (Eric Schiffer), a poor milkman delivering by cart around the town, as he explains to the viewers about their little community, and the thin line they tread on a daily basis between tradition and modernity — not unlike a fiddler trying to balance upon a roof, just inches from disaster.

That faith and tradition are the foundation of their lives, and inform their entire existence — which can lead to challenges, concerning relationships. Tevye and his wife Golde (Adriana Sanchez) have five daughters, three of marrying age, so it's the local matchmaker, Yente (Sherry Domerego) who arranges the pairings in the town.

Yente comes to Golde with exciting news — local butcher (and widower) Lazar Wolf (Scott Van Tuyl) is available, and wants to wed their eldest daughter, Tzeitel (Courtney Hays). However, unbeknownst to her mother and father, Tzeitel is in love with the local tailor (and her childhood friend) Motel (Matthew Rangel). Tevye only learns of the potential nuptials after a comedic miscommunication with Lazar Wolf at the local bar... the milkman might not be fond of the well-off butcher, but he feels he will provide his daughter with comfort and security.

Needless to say, Tzeitel is not enthusiastic about the arrangement.

But other friendships are slowly blossoming as well — such as between Tevye's second eldest, Hodel (Jaalene Serenity) and the visiting student/teacher from Kiev, Perchik (Daniel Gilmer). Her family takes him in, trading food for lessons for the daughters, even though the townsfolk see the politically aware young man as a radical with dangerous ideas.

But another threat to tradition is emerging in the form of one of the local gentiles, Fyedka (Alexander Shearer) and his interactions with Tevye's third eldest daughter, Chava (Kady Lawson).

There are already tensions in the town, such as when the local Constable (Dominic Ryan Gabriel) warns him about an upcoming pogrom, where the authorities pressed by the Tsar's government, intend on making an example of the local Jewish community and their distaste for them.

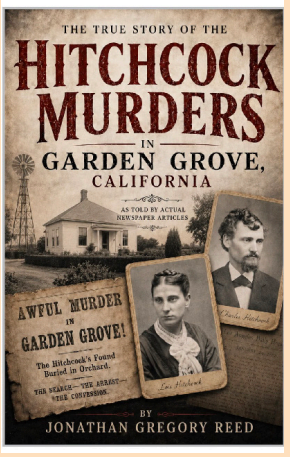

Family and tradition may be the cornerstone of their existence in the little town, but can it continue to sustain them in such turbulent times?

Stage Review

Great ★★★★

There is an amazing array of talent in this Gem production of "Fiddler", including many newer faces. The musical numbers are outstanding — such as "Now I Have Everything", a duet featuring Serenity's Hodel and Gilmer's Perchik is remarkable both in its beauty and the stellar vocal talents of these new additions to the Gem, or "Matchmaker" featuring all of the daughters (Hays, Se-

Rodgers went from hero to zero again

There's a wise saying in Latin – "sic transit gloria"– which means "all glory is fleeting."

That's usually true, especially if you chase the glory away be being, well, a jerk.

We're talking about the latest misadventures of Aaron Rodgers, once America's favorite quarterback, who is now very close to being America's biggest object of pity or contempt.

Rodgers, who basked in public adulation for 18 years as the signal-caller for the Green Bay Packers, was benched by the Pittsburgh Steelers and then unceremoniously shown the door by the team owners.

Sports Retorts
Jim Tortolano

That likely means that Rodgers has played his last NFL game. We can only hope he's said his last dumb thing.

He ripped into coach Mike McCarthy – who was also his coach with the Packers in what seems like another lifetime – on ESPN's "The Pat McAfee Show," accusing his former mentor of everything but the Lindbergh kidnapping.

That's just the latest classless act by Rodgers. Let's reminisce:

• During the COVID-19 pandemic, he told teammates he had been "immunized" but later revealed he hadn't been vaccinated;

• He expressed doubt about the "9/11" terrorist attack, suggesting it was not what it seemed;

•Without any proof, he suggested that comedian Jimmy Kimmel was connected to convicted sex trafficker Jeffrey Epstein. This followed a comment by Kimmel making fun of Rodgers' haircut.

There's more of that nonsense, but with any luck it won't be coming from Aaron Rogers, professional football player.

Blake Blazed Past Packers

Corum rushed for 184 yards in the Rams' 7th victory

By Greg Beacham
AP Sports Writer

BLAKE CORUM (24) carried the ball 32 times for 184 yards and a TD vs. the Packers (Abigail Dean/Rams photo).

INGLEWOOD (AP) — At some point, Blake Corum realized he should be getting weary while he ran the ball more times than anybody ever had during Sean McVay's 10 seasons in charge of the Los Angeles Rams.

"I just told myself I wasn't tired, even though I probably was," Corum said. "And our offensive line, it doesn't get tired."

Corum simply refused to slow down during the best game of his career — on his 26th birthday, no less.

And while Corum carried the ball a whopping 32 times, he also carried the Rams right back into the thick of the NFC playoff race.

Corum rushed for a career-high 184 yards and a touchdown, Kyren Williams ran for another score and the Rams used a relentless ground game to pound out their fifth consecutive victory, 26-13 over the Green Bay Packers on Wednesday night.

Corum punctuated his breakout season by making the most carries by anybody in the NFL this season and scoring a TD in his seventh consecutive game. The Rams (7-4) extended their unbeaten streak into December with 241 total yards rushing combined with another stout defensive performance, holding the Packers to 244 total yards.

"What you learn is, every single week you've got to adjust and adapt," McVay said. "The game honors toughness, and I think we're playing tougher. We're learning how to establish possession."

Indeed, Los Angeles controlled the ball for 23:45 in the second half, squeezing the life from the Packers inside a lively SoFi Stadium for this Thanksgiving Eve matchup.

The Rams did it behind Corum, whose 32 carries were the most by a Rams running back since Todd Gurley in 2015. He had 25 carries for 161 yards in the second half alone while Los Angeles stayed in control.

"We knew coming in that we

Kings top Ducks; Clips, Lakers fall

The Anaheim Ducks may be ahead of the Los Angeles Kings in the NHL Pacific Division standings, but their neighbor to the north is closing the gap.

On Friday at Honda Center, the Kings prevailed 5-3 to improve their record to 9-12-1, good for 20 points and seventh place in the Pacific. It was their second consecutive win.

The Ducks are 12-14-1 (25 points) and in fourth place.

Mats Zuccarello scored two goals for the Kings and Stian Solberg lit the lamp twice for the home team.

The Ducks took a 2-0 first period lead on Solberg's scores, but Zuccarello tied it in the second period with his two goals.

At the end of the second period the teams were tied 3-3, but the Kings pulled away with goals by Andre Lee and Trevor Moore, the latter being an empty net goal.

In the NBA's NBA Cup play, the Los Angeles Lakers and Los Angeles Clippers both lost.

The Lakers fell 99-96 to the San Antonio Spurs and the Clippers fell to the New Orleans Pelicans 105-104 in a pair of close contests.

would have to be a physical team, and I think we were the more physical team tonight," Corum said.

Jordan Love passed for 198 yards with two interceptions for the Packers (6-5), who have lost two straight for the first time since losing their final five games last season.

Green Bay only had the ball for 19:20 — just 6:15 in the second half — in a loss that pushed it farther from playoff contention.

"Losing the turnover battle, and then on top of that, our inability to stop the run — which is exactly what we knew they were going to do — that was a recipe for disaster, and tonight it was," Packers coach Matt LaFleur said.

Christian Watson had four catches for 65 yards and an early touchdown, but the star receiver was ruled out just before halftime with a concussion on a hard hit from Rams safety Kam Kinchens, who was ejected. The combination of Watson's absence and the NFL's worst rushing offense led to the Packers running only 16 plays in the second half.

"Right now we're leaning on the passing game, and when the passing game is not working and I'm not at my best, we're not going to be able to stay on the field and keep drives going, and that's what happened," Love said.

Micah Parsons had a sack in his season debut, but Green Bay's defense couldn't thwart the Rams' methodical ground attack.

McVay has changed his offense's focus with star receivers Puka Nacua and Davante Adams both injured for the past two games. Matthew Stafford passed for just 140 yards against the Packers while LA ran the ball 47 times despite losing two starters from in the second half from an offensive line that was already down two previous starters.

Brandon McManus also kicked four field goals against his former team for the Rams, who snapped their five-game skid in their rivalry with the Packers.

McVay finally earned his first victory over LaFleur, his offensive coordinator in Los Angeles in his debut season in 2017.

Rams linebacker Nate Landman produced his fourth forced fumble of the season on the Packers' second drive, leading to Los Angeles' second field goal.

Williams scored from 7 yards out early in the second quarter, giving the Rams points on their first three drives for the first time all season.

BYRON YOUNG (0) and the rest of the Rams' defense had reason to be proud of win over Green Bay (Abigail Dean/Rams photo).

renity, Lawson, Sierra Tolentino Chavez as Shprintze and Abigail Roberts as Bielke) is stunning in its sonorous harmony.

The family dynamics are gripping, as Tevye negotiates between his tradition and his daughters’ desire for happiness. He’s a man doing his best to be true to his beliefs, as well as being the best father he can — particularly under these challenging circumstances, as the cultural pressure in the town is rapidly coming to a boil.

And Mr. Schiffer?

He absolutely owns the role.

His Tevye is so genuine and authentic — his weariness etched upon his face, yet so determined to remain upbeat — even as he addresses his maker above, yet knowing the only response is the wind and the truth that echoes within his own heart. He’s a man whose identity is defined by his cultural traditions: but when they stand crosswise against his unconditional love for his wife and daughters... his anguish and conflict resonate with the audience in a way that is both heartbreaking and bittersweet.

His marvelous work with such numbers as his moving duet with Sanchez’s Golde in “Do You Love Me”, the boisterous classic “If I Were a Rich Man” charm, as well as the beloved, tear-jerking “Sunrise, Sunset” (with Golde and the ensemble) showcase his range. Schiffer’s Tevye is a beautifully rendered, and distinctly masterful performance.

“Fiddler on the Roof” is another scintillating jewel in the Gem’s crown — a powerful tale of belief and family, and the love of a man endlessly devoted to both.

“Fiddler on the Roof”; Eric Schiffer, Adriana Sanchez and Courtney Hays star in this timeless tale of a man in a balancing act between his heart and his soul.
